ATLANTA, GA. TUESDAY MORNING, MARCH 20, 1877.

NO. 243

DEATH OF A GEORGIA SENATOR.

It pains us to be compelled to chronicle the death of the Hon. James McDonald, of Thomas county, the representative of the seventh district in the Georgia senate. Senator McDonald was taken ill during the closing days of the general assembly, and although urged by his friends in this city to remain until he had thoroughly recovered from what they considered a temporary indisposition, he insisted on starting for home. Reaching Thomasville he was unable to proceed further, and in that city, at the residence of Colonel G. H. Cooke, surrounded by sorrowing friends, and mourned by all who knew him, he breathed his last on the 1st instant. He was a most highly esteemed citizen of Thomas county, and was, at the time of his death, nearly seventy years old. He served in the early years of the confederate war as a lieutenant-colonel, and gave two of his sons to the lost cause. His constituents placed implicit confidence in his judgment and integrity, and they never had reason to regret it. He was a member of the Georgia house of representatives for several terms, and was finally chosen to represent his section in the senate. Senator McDonald leaves a wife and eight children.

The last congress made no provision for the proper representation of the United States in the Paris exhibition of 1878; but Mr. Evans proposes that the executive department shall take steps at once which will assure the greatest of republics across the water that America will participate in the exhibition. It is proposed that a personal commission be appointed, which shall begin work immediately, relying upon congress to confer official authority and provide the necessary means. The executive department became so accustomed during the late lawless years to acting as it pleased that it frets under the restraints imposed by the democratic house. Still time presses, and it may be well to prepare for a proper American display without waiting for the meeting of congress. France is now a republic, and she had a splendid exhibit at Philadelphia. She deserves the hearty co-operation of this country.

In making up the proposed commission, the president would do well to remember that this country does not consist of Boston, New York and Philadelphia. There are a few outlying provinces. Those provinces are represented in congress, and a fair deal is advisable in such a hazardous game as Mr. Evans advises. A fairly constituted commission might be sustained, while a partial one would be rejected by the next congress.

The following is the vote in the ninth district as far as has been ascertained:

Bell's majority, 948.

The voice of Packard seems to be for war. Volunteers for his negro militia are gathering, and it is stated that he will soon endeavor to recapture the station house now in the hands of the democrats. This is to be deployed, particularly as Packard himself is not likely to lead any of the charges. If the trouble is begun by the pretender who now occupies the St. Louis hotel, we predict that it will be short, sharp and lively.

It is claimed that the steam-compressing of cotton has been carried a little too far to be economical. Extreme compression saves freight expenses, but it breaks or twists the staple, caking the whole thoroughly and deteriorating the bale in Liverpool at least one grade. When it arrives in a foreign market it does not come up to the grade of the sample, and reclaims follows.

In some way the agent of the association at Washington was induced to send the ridiculous statement that Mr. Hill was engaged in pushing Mr. Foster Blodgett for the marshalship of this district. "For ourselves," say the Augusta Chronicle, "we do not believe anything in the dispatch except that Mr. Hill is a senator and that Mr. Blodgett's christian name is Foster."

In effecting the swap of old Simon for his son, the president was compelled, it is said, to direct that new commissions be issued to the one hundred and fifty postmasters in Pennsylvania whose commissions expired March 13. But then, you know, Messrs. Evans and Schurz had not reported the new civil service rules.

ACCORDING to Hayes, the statu quo in South Carolina is to be preserved. After all, what is the statu quo. Hayes has had at least as many as sixteen days to look into this business, and he yet hesitates. So much for conciliation.

In Simon Cameron's breach of promise suit, the wily old wretch pleads that he never made the promise alleged. Some men are very naughty!

A negro named Wells waylaid and murdered a man, named O'Brien in Burke county recently. Wells has been captured and is in Wadesboro jail.

MATTERS are reported to be getting feverish in New Orleans. And yet it is to be hoped that Hayes will be allowed his sixteen days.

If Hayes goes back on the color line by refusing to allow Fred Douglass to present people, he may well be called a rebel.

Sunset Cox's Lecture.

The people of Atlanta will be affid to a splendid treat on Friday evening next when Hon. B. S. Cox will lecture for the library association. Sunset Cox has a speech delivered over two full hours on his subject and movement. He never fails to interest the people, and we could advise our readers to no enterainment so pleasing and instructive as the lecture of Mr. Cox.

"When the following house would fly" then in time when coughs and colds begin to appear. Dr. Bell's Cough Syrupures every case.

SENATOR GORDON is endeavoring to impress Hayes with something like logic.

SENATOR GORDON is interesting himself in South Carolina matters.

MAKING A MARSHAL.

THE TROUBLE THEY ARE GIVING HAYES ABOUT THE JOB

The Leading Applicants for the Place—Where They Stand and What They Claim—A Novel Bid on the Budget Edge.

Since the matter has gotten into the newspaper there has been general speculation throughout the city and largely over the state as to who will become United States marshal for the term soon to begin. The claims and merits of the applicants have been fully canvassed, and now expectation is upon tip-toe to catch the first tidings of the appointment. Every day for a week past it has been thought the telegraph wires would bring the edict, and even bogie rumors have been grossly seized upon, but to the present there is no solid indication of the "direction in which the cat is to jump."

"LET US HAVE PEACE."

Upon the inauguration of Hayes and his declarations in favor of a non-partisan civil service, there entered into this contract an element of suspicion which have not been removed since the election of Grant. Hayes has proven an exceedingly disturbing factor. There were democrats who felt that patriotism was not confined to party, and that in the era of peace and reconciliation they could afford to be self-sacrificing. They have thrown themselves to the front, much to the disgust of the Hayesites, who are equally zealous in their cause. The result is that the army is divided, and the negroes are marching to the bloody-shit standard. Hence, with the cry of peace upon their lips, they have war, and the fight thickens daily. The antagonizing elements are marshaling their clans for the final onslaught, and Hayes is delaying an augmenting storm and flood-burst.

The Cameron organs are getting even by calling up Delaware. They claim that the little state has been represented by two families—the Bayards and Sandburys—time out of mind. The present senator, Willard Saulsbury, was elected in 1871 to succeed his brother, Eli Saulsbury, who served from 1865 to 1871; and another brother, George Saulsbury, was governor of Delaware from 1865 to 1861.

Mr. Saulsbury is a fairly-constituted man, and a fair compromise might be sustained, while a partial one would be rejected by the next congress.

The senate refused to confirm the nomination of William M. Stone to be district attorney for South Carolina. Stone is a brother-in-law of Corbin, who was elected by the Chamberlain legislature to the senate, and whose credentials are now with Morton's returning board, the committee on privileges and elections. Stone's nomination was made with the understanding that Corbin was to use his influence to induce Chamberlain to abdicate. The democrats voted solid against the accommodation appointment, and not a few republicans. The senate, and not Hayes, seems to be in favor of a genuine reform in the civil service. But then "the rules" had not been adopted.

THE PEOPLE AND POLITICIANS

—Col. John F. Coyle, of Washington National Intelligencer fame, has been in the city several days.

—Judge Hall and Solicitor Dismuke were in the city on Sunday.

—Skew Hogan Bryant was in the city Saturday and Sunday. He is trying to get to Washington for some unex-blaine-d purpose.

—Emory Speed reported not to be taking his defeat with that amount of philosophy which one would imagine him to possess.

—Rev. Dr. Loftis is now engaged in publishing a series of spiritual sermons in preparation for the Decalogue, at the Central Presbyterian church.

—Georgia office-seekers who promptly migrated to Washington about the time of inauguration are returning in dubious spirits.

—Bullock is said to be shooting about Washington in the interests of a civil service form and his own appointment to a foreign consulate.

—Northern tourists are stopping over in our city every day, going to and coming from Florida.

—Donald Baine has made a ten strike in securing Sunbeam Cox to open the lecture room for the third year.

—It appears that the Cobb county only of the three composing this district, is perfectly ignorant about the convention.

—City Engineer McDaniel is preparing a new and correct city map for publication in a new Atlas to be published by a Baltimore firm.

—Col. E. Y. Clarke and his lady left for a trip to Florida yesterday. They go for need of rest and health seeking.

—There is some talk of the formation of a clerical benevolent association in the city.

—It is said that several new books on African writers and compilers will appear during the summer.

—Solomon General Hill is winning deserved encomiums in his new position. He is energetic and able and has backed up with ardor to the task of mastering the details of his office. With his aptitude and talents he promises to creditably acquit himself and sustain the good reputation which he has earned in the office of the state auditor.

—The probabilities are that no man will be appointed with an appointment to a vacancy created by the removal of Mr. Foster Blodgett.

THE LAW
All in a family gathering.
And in the sun it was,
Among the flowers he was lying.
There was a little noise.
The last bell had rung.
"What's that?" he said.
"And why were you lying?"
"I am in a dream—
But who is there?"
A person would have said.
He was taken from his love,
And in a dream he was.
When neither noise nor care can shine.
He slept on, in a dream, where have mine.
You pretty girl!

"If I had but a few now,
I would be a happy man.
For if I would not longer
I would be a happy man.
Nor would I be a happy man;
The glow-worm would not light to me,
And my mother would be.
A kiss from her would bring your sight."

"I used to sing the roses;
With meadow larks in their year;
The glow-worm lights in their taper.
But I have no paper,
To write on, or pen,
To fly him, then, and tell him this;
She loves you, and she sends a kiss—
A kiss from her would bring your sight."

—R. H. Seddon, in Appleton's Journal.

ROUNDABOUT IN GEORGIA.

—Theodore in Saturday's Constitution in regard to General Tombs' speech at the convention was erroneously attributed to the LaGrange reporter. It should have been credited to the Carrollton Express.

—We are informed that no copies of

The Constitution were received at LaGrange except those sent to the newsboys. This matter will be looked into.

—The Bainbridge Democrat and the Valdosta Times are both opposed to a convention. The editors of these papers have evidently read the Milledgeville Recorder, which goes so far as to say that the principal object of holding a convention is to remove the capital. The editor of the R order seems determined to defeat his own objects.

—An old lady, named Mrs. Cogswell, living alone in Butts county, was burned to death recently. A neighbor calling on her the other day found only her charred remains lying upon the floor.

—It seems that Tony Mason, who was recently killed by two brothers named Thompson, had been unduly intimate with a sister of the latter, and the attack upon him was occasioned by his boasts to that effect.

—Hawkinsville had a slight touch of the storm.

—There is a man in Troup county who has slept away from his family only three nights since Johnson's surrender.

—A coach on the Central railroad was recently fired into by some unknown person. Judge Herschel V. Johnson was a passenger on the coach.

—Mr. Frank Isler, of Baker county, met Mr. G. D. Lamar in the road the other day and stabbed him with a bowie-knife, inflicting a dangerous wound. Isler made his escape. The parties had had a difficulty before.

—Dougherty county has had a cold-weather murder.

—The Hon. Tete Smith was greeted on his arrival at Albany from Washington by a serenade.

—A Cobb county man has recently found a half bushel of grasshoppers on a piece of stubble land on his farm.

—The dwelling house of Mr. John M. Walker, of Cobb county, was burned by an incendiary recently.

—The blue-glass theory has no defender in the editor of the Hawkinsville Dispatch. With an Irish potato in one pocket and a buckeye in the other, he scores all theories.

—A woman who was the principal witness against the woman who impeded Mrs. Sothern in Pickens county some time ago, has herself been murdered.

—Bainbridge has had a pony race.

—R. H. Whitley—Slippery Dick—has gone to Colorado.

—The little son of Col. W. O. Fleming, who accidentally shot himself recently, has since died.

—Bainbridge is to have two new steamboats on the river.

—Mr. John Williams, of Berrien county, was knocked down and robbed in Macon the other day. From this it appears that Macon would not be a good place for the capital.

—Albany News: The heavy cyclone which passed through a portion of Georgia, and the Western and Colonial countries has very greatly impoverished those people, and they need assistance. Many limbs are broken, and men and women entirely unfit for the work of preparing the soil for another crop. They must have help. Especially do we call upon the citizens of Albany and vicinity. The unfortunate people are their neighbors and look upon Albany as their home market, and the Albany business men as their friends. Our neighboring towns, cities and communities too, will not be slow to respond to this call. Let committees be appointed in the different places to solicit aid, and will require a sum from each citizen to prove a great relief and blessing to the stricken section. We would suggest that a meeting be held in this city at once in order that we may proceed to render the aid needed in our power, and without delay. Money for the various provisions and clothing will be acceptable.

—Valdosta Times: A terrible storm—in fact a cyclone—passed over the upper portion of this county last Thursday night week, doing a great amount of damage in the destruction of fencing and houses. It entered the county near the Cat Creek mills, falling the pine trees in front of the mill, not the pine trees, but the severest cyclone. At the mills it blew down the dwelling house of Mr. Robert Thomas, seriously if not fatal, crippling that gentleman, and bruising other members of this family. Aside from the great destruction of pine timber and fencing, the next serious injury was to Mr. John J. Harrel's place. This gentleman's dwelling house was unroofed, his gun house scattered before the fury of the hurricane, and his gun screw toppled completely over. His shade trees were blown down and his fencing driven like chaff before the wind. He was severely beaten, having laid him considerably behind his back in his farming operations for the year. The next we heard of his destruction was at Mill Town, in Berrien county. Some eighteen houses were demolished in this quiet little village, and among the number was the Methodist church. Five lives were lost, but there was some damage done among the stock. We have heard nothing of its course beyond this point.
